One Health EcoHealth Conference: 3-7 December 2016 Melbourne Australia

ON THE YARRA

WHY? The Co-Creation Stream will provide an interactive eco-social programme for the Congress that provides context and local relevance, and ensures that the delegates have the opportunity to engage with the local people, places and spaces that make ecosystem approaches to health relevant for Melbourne.

WHAT? Planning has commenced for activities to occur around the conference including:

- Pre-conference workshop (3 Dec): a 'priming' workshop to be hosted at the University of Melbourne involving site visits to the Yarra River and elsewhere.
- Welcome to Country (and related activities)
- A booth for coordinating activities, providing information, reporting ongoing outcomes
- Scaled activities each day of the conference leading to the production of a Conference Statement on the contributions that can be made by regional approaches to the health and nature agenda. Proposed activities include:
 - > City Walks/Yarra walk, Yarra River cruise
 - > Breakfast talks and related events
 - > Opportunities to engage with Koori heritage and Elders
 - > An Art competition for a logo for Oceania EcoHealth Chapter,
 - > Oceania Dinner/celebratory event after the IAEH Biennial General Meeting.
- Profiling students: a NextGen night with a Pecha Kucha competition and prizes for two best presentations to be featured in the Plenary programme
- Media: a commitment from Croakey to hear from diverse Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples about caring for country in climate change and sustainability
- Integrative activities profiling of delegates, and co-hosting of IAEH events.
- Post-conference half/full day field trips in conjunction with Parks Victoria.

WHO FOR? This Stream will be available to any conference delegate who can use the stream to celebrate an eco-social approach to health on the Yarra River, in Melbourne, and being in the Oceania region.
